Somebody's Bluff.

Gov Davey charges the legislature is outraged by any or from heavily populated counties [illegible] bluff as to the plan to match state relief funds with federal funds thereby shifting the relief burden to local government and giving the state more money to spend

Some members of the legislature and spokesmen for areas with heavy relief burdens are equally sure the governor is running a bluff against them with his insistence on matching state money They can't believe he really means it

This matching of wits has been going on for many weeks each side trying to outdo the other A climax finally has been reached Gov Davey has threatened to turn over relief to the national guard unless the legislature knuckles under

It is a dramatic gesture Immediately he is caught easily by the possibility that recipients of relief may be getting food from army kitchens rolled into vacant lots in urban areas after April 15

There is just one thing wrong with Governor Davey's viewpoint If his bluff is called and it will be easier to call it than to match it he will be in a hot spot Inevitably Ohio would blame him for pulling relief into the hands of militiamen even though he has explained it will be the legislature's fault if such a thing happens It wouldn't be shrewd politics and Gov Davey probably will be advised to that effect if he doesn't know it already

Dr. C. J. Nichols

Long life accompanied by mental and physical health necessary for full enjoyment of the passing years is the desire of the average person and unfortunately that happy combination does not come to everybody

Dr C J Nichols who died yesterday at the age of 87 was one of those favored with long and vigorous life Until approximately two years ago he was able to practice his profession as a dentist and even after his retirement from that work in which he had been engaged more than 60 years he continued an active interest in current events until his last illness began following an accident less than a month ago

Few if any Marion residents had a wider acquaintance in the community and throughout the state than Dr Nichols That resulted largely from his political activities connection with fraternal orders participation in the affairs of dental organizations and his constant observation of developments in government and public business generally Personal doubt the fact that all these interests held his attention during his long life explains in a large measure the alertness of mind and the clear viewpoint which he retained until the last

It will be a [illegible] of great interest [illegible] always ready to give his views on public affairs at all times when [illegible] Dr Nichols [illegible] and firm in [illegible] The love of his life he was [illegible] best known [illegible] dentistry and as an [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] but [illegible] has lost [illegible] to pass [illegible] his interest [illegible] community [illegible] of which [illegible]

Dr Nichols came [illegible] to Marion [illegible] [illegible] difficulties and [illegible] The love of his life he was [illegible] best known [illegible] dentistry and as an [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] but [illegible] has lost [illegible] to pass [illegible] his interest [illegible] community [illegible] of which [illegible] many years [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] for the [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] history

Michigan Vote

Michigan [illegible] by [illegible] experts as [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] industrial and [illegible] why returns [illegible] tion this week [illegible]

Interest was based [illegible] premise that Michigan [illegible] flect their attitude [illegible] in their decisions on local [illegible] though their connection with [illegible] ies was so remote in most cases [illegible] negligible

This premise if correct is more important than the result of the contests which turned out favorably for Republican candidates. It signifies the extent to which local government has been submerged in the federal government In the election last November, county and state candidates found themselves at the mercy of the strong tides running with and against parties of their ticket Even in Ohio and local elections conducted and patronized on national election issues are being exploited to the disadvantage of local issues

It is not such political tradition should be [illegible] the hands of the most capable [illegible] administration which [illegible] which of personal interests and which [illegible] local [illegible] for party affiliation

MARION CO. RELIEF FIGURES IN DISPUTE

said. The state relief commission had assured payment of these overdue accounts but the funds have not been made available. Furthermore he said that in yesterday's conference with the state finance director it was questioned whether the overdue amount ever would be paid to the county. In view of this uncertainty officials feel the county should be held to apply on the deficit in the event the state does not meet it, the auditor pointed out.

The state relief commission's listings of funds available for relief purposes in the various counties included figures for neighboring counties as follows: Crawford $42,707; Delaware $2,861; Haron $30,600; Morrow $2,665; Union $10,633; Wyandot, $13,152.

Kitchen Plan Discussed

Meanwhile the possibility of establishing an emergency food distribution center in Marion under a plan suggested by Governor Davey was discussed in relief conferences. Major Donald E. Spray of Columbus National Guard officer named to survey relief conditions here in connection with the proposed food center arrived yesterday and conferred with John Abel county relief director. This morning he and Mr. Abel met with the county commissioners. He emphasized his mission here is purely one of fact finding. He heard an estimate from Mr. Abel that between 1,150 and 1,400 persons would be eligible for food if the kitchen plan of distribution were begun.

From the county commissioners' meeting Major Spray proceeded to express... ...unfavorable to the kitchen idea, but the board assured him it will help in every way possible if it becomes necessary to establish a food center.

Last night the Eagles lodge although not indorsing the kitchen idea offered use of its kitchen and dining room facilities capable of feeding 2 5 persons at one time in the event the plan is put into operation.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbreath collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press)

IN OLD GALLIPOLIS

Among the company of French colonists arriving on the site of Gallipolis in October, 1790, was a priest, Father Didier, who gave himself to looking after the spiritual need of the colonists.

But the group was rather a warlike lot. It had just escaped from the turmoil in France and the men, free from the restraint of the conventions of society, were more concerned with establishing themselves in the new country and having a good time than they were with religion.

Discouraged, Father Didier left the colony after one year's unsuccessful labor. In 1818 another priest came to the Gallipolis colony, but he too remained only a year, journeying on down the river to New Orleans.

Author Complains Shoes Are Lacking from Diamond Ensemble.

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, April 8—It was quite a surprise to friends of writer Gene Towne today when he solemnly announced he was a "holdout" from the Chicago White Sox.

In the first place, they didn't know he played baseball. Furthermore, he earns around $5,000 a week writing movies for producer Walter Wanger.

Yet Towne produced a regulation White Sox uniform, and more authentic, a $1-a-year contract duly signed by Vice President Harry Grabiner of the Chisox.

"This is no ordinary salary holdout," Towne explained. "It's deeper.

"They issued me a uniform and gave me a satisfactory contract to play baseball on the one condition that I not play baseball.

Golan Robert Shaw, who scored a victory over William Rupert of Marion on the Tuesday night card will return to meet Today Bob Moreland, who eliminated Nick Monaco of Tiffin in the opening round. Monroe Fields of Richwood scored a decision over Richard Reynolds of Columbus on the Tuesday night card and will continue his bid for honors by meeting Verne Griffith, Marion's 139-pounder who will be getting his first taste of competition.

Sam Jones of Columbus, a member of the boxing team of the Ohio School for the Deaf, is paired with Casto Ramsey of Galion. Both of the boys will be taking their first part in the current Golden Gloves competition.

A lot has been said and written about a jerky pitching motion, but that's not so. It's his quick, abrupt windup that gives that impression. Once he comes on through his pitching motion is all rhythm, with his shoulders and body well into it. Obviously, he sees all our with every pitch, but as did "Dazzy" Vance the old Dodger ace and, offhand, "Dazzy" had the pitching style nearest to Feller's.

Among the New York Giants, who faced him in exhibitions, there seems to be some difference of opinion as to the exceptional quality of Bob's fast ball. Some, like Whitehead, say he's the fastest they've seen, others, like Dick Bartell, insist that they've seen Van Mungo when he was faster.

Speed, Curve Impress

But all agree that his fast ball performs tricks, finishes with a sweep that makes it difficult to follow. And all were impressed with his curve, which is also a fast pitch that darts rather than breaks.

In his first exhibition against the Giants, he didn't strike 'em, he handcuffed them. They didn't get a lone foul in three innings and six of the eleven men to face him—Chiozza twice, Ottawa, Thevenow, Whitehead and McCarthy—were strike-out victims.

Just to emphasize his complete mastery, he closed out the show with three successive strikeouts in the third. All three batters worked the count to three and two and each time he came through with a curve ball that left the batter nothing to hit at but the atmosphere. A more emphatic job can't possibly be imagined.

FAME ENLARGES OWENS' WARDROBE

By United Press

When Jesse Owens hero of the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin, was starring in high school track circles five years ago, his wardrobe consisted of one suit. Today, after catapulting to fame while at Ohio State and entering the professional ranks, Owens can make his selection of wearing apparel from a 22 suit wardrobe. The Negro sprinter recently made a swing through Ohio with his dance band.

Take Profit Out of Sports

Dr. J. Wilson Shaffer, athletic director, and Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins university, are shown as they discussed the new athletic policy of the university in Baltimore. They will eliminate charges to all sports events, and will neither pay guarantees to visiting teams nor accept them when Johns Hopkins plays away from home. The move is one of the most revolutionary ever taken in college athletics.

Bob Feller Ace Showman; No. 1 Man at Boxoffice

BY HARRY SCHUMACHER
International News Service
Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 8—After taking our first look of 1937 at the precocious Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, we are prompted to make one suggestion: See him at your first opportunity. You'll miss something if you stay away.

For the boy has that something extra that lifts him above the crowd, catches the eye and compels applause. How far the 18-year-old ex-plough jockey from Iowa will go can't be determined, but this much can be said: You've never seen a pitcher who could put more curlis into a pitching job.

He possesses in his own way the flair for the spectacular that made Babe Ruth so great. And, like the Babe's, his is a natural quality, not a phoney personality such as "Dizzy" Dean assumes to attract attention. It is sheer merit that can't be imitated; if his strength and pitching arm can withstand the strain he's strikeouts will win him the fame and acclaim the Babe won with his home runs. And because that is true he becomes the Babe's logical successor as baseball's No. 1 box office attraction.

A Big Boy

Feller is a big boy, of whom grandma would probably say he is big for his age. His face is full and fleshy, indicating his youth, but his torso is tremendous, his wide, sloping shoulders, heavily muscled across the back, reveal exceptional strength, and they say that when he grabs a baseball in his enormous right paw he all but crushes it.

A lot has been said and written about a jerky pitching motion, but that's not so. It's his quick, abrupt windup that gives that impression. Once he comes on through his pitching motion is all rhythm, with his shoulders and body well into it. Obviously, he sees all our with every pitch, but as did "Dazzy" Vance the old Dodger ace and, offhand, "Dazzy" had the pitching style nearest to Feller's.

3 FAMOUS SIRES TO BE REPRESENTED IN KENTUCKY DERBY

Nine Entries Offspring of Sir Galahad III, Gallant Fox, Man O' War.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, April 8—Three of America's outstanding thoroughbred sires—Sir Galahad III, Gallant Fox, and Man O'War—will not lack for capable representatives in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Nine of the trio's offspring, six of them by Sir Galahad, are among the 108 nominees but only three stand out prominently in the pre-race speculation for the May 8 renewal of the Motor turf classic. They are: Privileged, son of Sir Galahad and Galsun, sired by Gallant Fox, both from Warren Wright's Calumet farm, and Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, lone representative of the famous super-horse, now 20 years old.

There is little to choose among the three. Privileged and War Admiral are quoted at 15 to 1 each in the future books, Galsun, 20 to 1. Reports from their training camps, the Calumet farm at Lexington, and Havre de Grace, where War Admiral is quartered, fairly glow with optimism.

Privileged was the star of the Wright pair as a two-year-old but Frank Kearns' Barring training Galsun is favored now by Trainer Milshaps, he plans to start both in the derby.

Dizzy, Apologetic Over Scrap, Wants To Be Scribes' Friend.

By The Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 8—Dizzy Dean, irrepressible St. Louis baseball pitcher wants to be friends with sports writers.

He told scribes last night he was sorry about what happened the week he was in Tampa hotel when a fight was on two of them. He added:

"It's the first time I ever had any trouble with a sports writer, and you can take it from me, it'll be the last time."

"I'm a better man than the average Joe, and I want you fellows to be my friends."

MARION, COLUMBUS SHOOTERS TO MEET

Representative Columbus and Marion target teams are paired for a return schedule on the indoor range at the Eagles' building for Friday night. The capital city squad will be made up of members of the Columbus Pistol club. This is the first match of the season between Columbus and Marion teamsmen. BRADDOCK PREFERS LOUIS AS FOE DUE TO POWER AT GATE

Champ Believes He Has Number" of Both Joe and Schmeling.

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY

STONE LAKE, Wis., April 8—Whom would James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight champion, rather fight—Joe Louis or Max Schmeling?

It makes no difference to the "Pride of Hell's Kitchen," Braddock says, as he sunned himself in a big wooden lawn chair, "the man I want to meet is the one who will draw the biggest gate, and that's Louis. I'm sure we'll be in training in Chicago, June 22. My manager, Joe Gould, told me to do that much, and let him do the worrying over threatened court action. That suits me."

Which fighter would be the easier opponent?

Braddock says there is a right way to fight either one.

"I have studied the styles of each and I am convinced I've got the number of the champion armies.

Braddock is disappointed in the lingering winter weather conditions which have made roads impassable on the dirt roads leading to his camp on Little Sissabagama. The roads are almost impassable to automobiles, even chains. Snow still blankets the countryside and 30 inches of ice covers the lake.

As a result, Braddock works for two hours daily swinging his double bitted axe on hard maple. He displays fine form, perfect aim and tremendous power. Blisters, however, are developing on his hands.

Eight passengers can be seated in compartments under each wing of a new Russian military transport airplane.

Married Comrades

Madge Lillian and Mary Tense As Drama on High Seas Nears Climax

LILLIAN HERSELF answered my mental query as to how much she knew of my father's plans when after he had kissed me with a tender kiss and had gone over the side she came to me and put her hand out to me.

"I know what you're thinking," she said, "and I am wrong. I know no more than you do of Ana the chief's daughter. I think of her as a very much desired prize which we are

But they did not remain long in doubt as to what he expected of them. Lillian soon had seen fit to impart to her sister all I had told her. Then in the presence of the crew of the correct which would explain all to you and Mary are here at all instead of being safely at home which is where the chief's are.

Lillian jumped. "Surely you don't mean—I've been imagining something outlandish also—"

"Don't spill it," he said sharply with a look toward Mary who was leaning over the rail with her eyes straining through the darkness for the first glimpse of the yacht her father now had returned for this mysterious purpose in which according to my father he was risking almost his entire fortune and without knowing it the life of his only son Mary was also risking her hand.

Sight Veritzen Yacht

"I'm seeing nothing, hearing nothing," Lillian quoted in the same monotone we had been using.

But there is no use risking her being attacked by a crew which might rouse her so let's still our imaginations for an hour or two B, that time I imagine we'll know whether we're sane or plain crazy."

"Look," I interrupted with a frenzied clutch at her hand. "Aren't those lights over there?"

She followed my gaze and her hand gripped mine so that I bore the marks of her fingers for hours.

"They surely are," she said. "That must be the Veritzen yacht. The poor fool. The boat is as illuminated as if he were giving a ball on board! Well there's one thing that other boat that's coming him can't miss him and if it has as many lights as he has will be able to sit back and see

The engines of the second boat drowned the slight noise made by the gasoline the crew guard raft and our own motor yacht as with no lights they made record no motions where they were within hail of the brilliantly lighted boat which all unconscious one of the prow [illegible] of no other craft as the object of its quest was rapidly approaching the Veritzen yacht.

Harry Underwood's voice sounded an admonition.

"Some girls you'll have to go over to that new ship in a rowboat as we can't get it near the office."

"Has one gone absolutely crazy?" his wife demanded in an undertone. Then she recognized her words.

I suppose that's all any of her explanations in his Mad Hatter sense she said. And then as we were drawn again to the two brilliantly lighted boats I felt were lying at anchor now so close to each other that we could see men evidently in conversation gesticulating an emphasis in their words.

Then Noel went over the side of the yacht into a rowboat manned by two of the crew while others handed down to him numberless bags which we knew from my father's inscription were filled with the substitutes for the bills Phillip Veritzen had so foolishly brought with him to the sacrifice.

The rowboat pulled across the short distance between the two ships and Noel climbed lightly to the deck of the second ship while sailors handed up the bags.

Then he lifted his left hand with a commanding gesture—I guessed that his right was [illegible] around a weapon in his pocket and evidently made a demand of some sort of the man probably the command er of the boat who had stepped forward to meet him when he came on board.

And then—from the rear of the deck walking with all the lithe grace of a leopard—the unmistakable figure of Jack Leslie appeared. He walked up to Noel said something to him and made a mocking gesture. The next instant Noel had struck him across the mouth and the next the two young men were locked in deadly combat.
